

SGLH

Schweizerische Gesellschaft für Lebensmittelhygiene
Société Suisse d'Hygiène des Denrées Alimentaires
Swiss Society for Food Hygiene

Swiss Society for Food Hygiene (SGLH)

1. Who we are

The Swiss Society for Food Hygiene (SGLH) is an independent, non-profit, member-based organization that promotes food safety and hygiene as a crucial part of public health.

2. Our mission

To advance food safety and hygiene in Switzerland and beyond by providing a forum for continuing education, knowledge exchange and networking between members from academia, food production, and competent authorities. SGLH is open to collaborations with any national or international institutions that are pursuing similar objectives.

3. Getting involved

We welcome any individuals or corporations interested in food safety and hygiene in Switzerland. SGLH members benefit from our continuing education, knowledge exchange and networking opportunities. Students and young scientists can also benefit from our travel grants, scholarships, poster competition and young scientist award.

Corporate membership	CHF 200 (2 staff members can attend events for free)
Single membership	CHF 50
Students	free

4. Benefits

- Comprehensive training opportunities in form of free conferences, discussion forums, workshops, and discounted courses
- Excursions with insights into food producing companies
- Promoting young talent through scholarships, travel grants, the SGLH sponsorship award, and poster competitions
- Publish or seek job opportunities in our online job portal
- Benefit from the excellent networking opportunities at SGLH event

5. Major events

- General assembly & excursion
 - Gain insights into a food production process and be informed on developments in our society when joining us for the annual general assembly.
- SGLH conference
 - Get up to speed on the latest scientific advances presented by national and international speakers and join in the discussion on how we can utilize them to improve food safety and hygiene.
- SGLH discussion forum
 - This highly interactive event enables a dialogue between food industry, competent authorities, and academia. Join us in trying to find common ground when picking up on controversial issues or interpreting the newest legislative changes.

June 30th, 2022